Colors

The TaxJar palette leans on black, green and shades of gray for primary use. Text should always be black. The grays should be used in the application and when the brand needs to be more functional. Secondary colors, should be used in marketing when the brand needs a greater sense of play. Use secondary only in small application, never as large floods.

Colors – Accessibility

Most common usage should be the green on black or black on green. Avoid the green on white with text. When needing a link color use the dark blue from the secondary palette.

Safe use of colors for accessibility

UnSafe use of colors for accessibility

Colors – Gradients

Gradients should maintain a single color category and transition through the midtone and lightest tone of that color. Gradients should not be combined with one another. Use the Green gradient as the lead. Other gradients should be used with approval from the design team.

Product Highlights

Taxjar product highlights are stylized versions of the existing product. Each shot should focus in on the highlighted area that the copy is disscussing. The product highlight should work as a companion to the content.

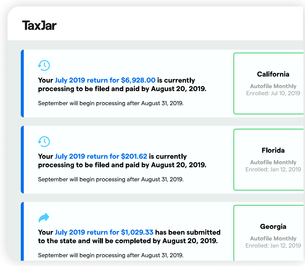
Product Highlights – Designing a Platform Shot

Taxjar logo can be used to convey that this is the Taxjar platform.

Platform holding shape should have rounded corners on the top and bottom of the displayed side. The platform should bleed off the page on the right or left and should be flat there.

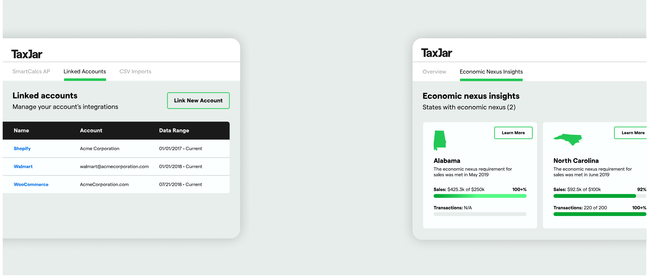
Platform illustrations should be a zoomed in versions of the actual platform. These should use real copy and icons to convey what the action of the platform is.

Colors and fonts should be pulled from the brand style guide.



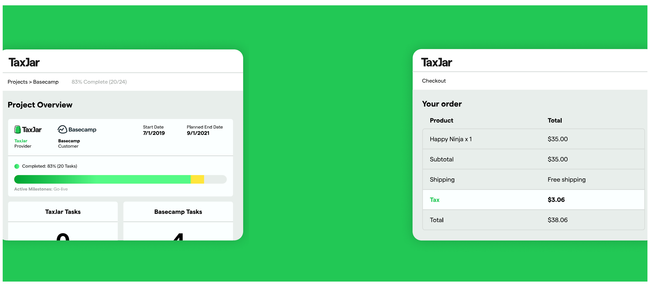
Product Highlights – Examples

Drop Shadow no offset with blur 20% and black 20%



Integrate with eCommerce platforms, marketplaces & carts

Determine where you have economic nexus



Get up and running fast

Apply sales tax instantly — at scale

Product Highlights – Knowledge Base

There are many cases when it is more important to show the real TaxJar platform for education, demo and just highlighting the real interaction of the product. These should be limited to the educational sections of the website and content resources that need more product details.

Simplified product screenshots in educational material (knowledgebase articles, TaxJar unlocked resources, etc) are acceptable.
